

Yvonne Williams
Interfaith Warehouse Manager

Interfaith has many faithful volunteers doing jobs involving many different programs and responsibilities, but none is more labor intensive and time consuming than managing Interfaith's warehouse.

For more than two years, Yvonne Williams has been responsible for accepting donations and distributing furniture and household goods to families in need in Virginia's Lancaster and Northumberland Counties.

Yvonne is there when families who have been victims of fire or otherwise find themselves without necessary furniture and household goods come for help.

She is there when donated items – some very large and heavy – arrive for unloading and storage in the warehouse.

She opens the warehouse twice a week – on Monday mornings and Wednesday evenings – to serve Interfaith's clients, and she keeps records, manages inventories, recruits volunteers, and does many other chores that come under "other duties as assigned."

Warehouse manager would be a big job under perfect conditions – but since we are a volunteer organization with limited funds, Yvonne deals with less-than-perfect working conditions – and she does so with unfailing energy, poise and good humor.

Good job, Yvonne!
